Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Friday 26 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Windy and colder with wintry showers tonight.

This Evening and Tonight:
During the evening and overnight blustery showers, at times heavy and wintry will continue from the west, with a few clearer spells between. Some snow is likely over high ground with the risk of some icy stretches. Minimum temperature -2 deg C (28 deg F).

Saturday:
A cold start with local icy surfaces. Sunny spells and a few wintry showers through the morning. Cloud building from the west through the afternoon with outbreaks of rain later. Maximum temperature 9 deg C (48 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Windy on Sunday with spells of rain, at times heavy and persistent. Largely cloudy with occasional rain in the north on Monday and Tuesday, but drier and warmer further south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.